Rockbridge Fruit Growers Form Association

A helpful meeting in the interest of the fruit growing industry of Rockbridge was held in the Courthouse Monday last, with an address by State Entomologist J. L. Phillips of Blacksburg, who directed his talk with special reference to the codling moth, or worm in apples.

The meeting was called to order at 11:30 o'clock by Mr. Hugh A. White, in the absence of Mr. Frank T. Glasgow who was ill, and Mr. Frank T. Snider of Rockbridge Baths was elected chairman. Mr. Snider presented Mr. Phillips, who spoke at length on fruit culture. Drawings and illustrations were used in the lecture. The codling moth is very destructive to apples, declared the lecturer, but the pest may be destroyed by proper spraying. Early in May the worm gets in the blossom end of the apple and lays eggs from which hatches a numerous progeny. A second brood is hatched in July. It is important, therefore, that the first brood be destroyed, and this can be done if the trees are thoroughly sprayed in April just after the bloom drops. One thorough spraying gives good results, but a second spraying two weeks after the first will insure a thorough destruction of the worm. Mr. Phillips gave directions for mixing and using the spray. The spray may be bought already mixed.

Mr. Phillips also discussed peach culture, and gave much valuable information on the subject of peach yellows. The only remedy for peach yellows he declared to be the destruction of the tree. He said sandy and loose rocky soil was better adapted to peach culture than heavy clay soil. At the afternoon meeting an organization was perfected of a Rockbridge branch of the Shenandoah Valley Fruit Growers' Association, whose purpose is to stimulate interest in fruit culture, and to provide a better market for the products of the orchard. The following officers were elected: Messrs. W. L. Bryan of Fairfield, president; Frank T. Glasgow of Lexington, permanent secretary; Frank T. Snider of Rockbridge Baths, secretary pro tem.

An executive committee, composed of the president and secretary and the following gentlemen, was elected: Messrs. Daniel Welsh, J. G. Alexander, Thomas Dixon, J. O. Overeier and Ira R. Alphin.

Following are the members of the association as organized Monday: Messrs. W. L. Bryan, J. W. Engleman, C. L. Thompson, J. G. Alexander, H. Womeldorf, J. O. Greaver, F. T. Snider, Daniel Welsh, G. F. Fultz, I. R. Alphin and Dixon Brothers.

The interest of other fruit growers will be enlisted and the membership of the association enlarged, thereby increasing the efficiency of the organization.

Daughters of the Confederacy to Abolish Prize

Mrs. J. Enders Robinson of Richmond, historian-general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, has addressed a circular letter to the various chapters throughout the country with the request that they use their influence to abolish the prize of $100 given by the U. D. C. annually for an historical paper.

This action on the part of the Daughters is due to the prize being awarded to Miss Boyson, a Northern young lady, for her essay entitled, "Robert E. Lee, a Present Estimate," in which the writer expressed views contrary to the generally accepted opinions of General Lee.

In response to this letter the Mary Custis Lee Chapter, of Lexington, adopted the following resolution at their meeting Saturday, February 20th:

"We, the Mary Custis Lee Chapter, U. D. C., Lexington, Va., wishes to express its disapproval of the award made in the recent prize essay contest.

"We would not question Miss Boyson's right to hold her opinion of the South and its people or to embody that opinion in writing, but this chapter believes that in an historical paper the first requisite is truth, and failing in this essential, as this paper admittedly does, we consider that no amount of literary charm or beauty of diction can make it of value as an historical document.

"We would protest against a decision, in which the Daughters of the Confederacy appear to set the seal of their approval upon inaccuracies and misrepresentations concerning the South and its people.

"We would especially protest against the injustice done the Southern officers and soldiers, who are characterized as incompetent and selfish—these men who for four years engaged in a struggle at which 'all the world wondered.' "We would therefore earnestly suggest that heretofore this offer for a prize essay be discontinued."
